

London

The New York City Police Foundation funds the deployment of NYPD officers to jurisdictions outside New York City under the International and Domestic Liaison Program. The program focuses on counterterrorism, and officers are expected to “build contacts with local law enforcement agencies and provide in-depth analysis to their counterparts back home”. Additionally, the officers are supposed to provide information to the NYPD “in the event of a terrorist attack overseas”. A London posting was established in 2002.

Citations:

New York City Police Foundation. (n.d.) Counterterrorism. Available at: <https://www.nycpolicefoundation.org/ourwork/advance/counterterrorism/> (Accessed: 4 December 2024).